

Work Integrated Learning project: Kahn meets Mies
Client: Mies van Der Rohe Society

My design for an Art Gallery was generated using the compositional method that our Lecturer Robert Tuckwell invented from his research into the architecture of Louis Kahn.

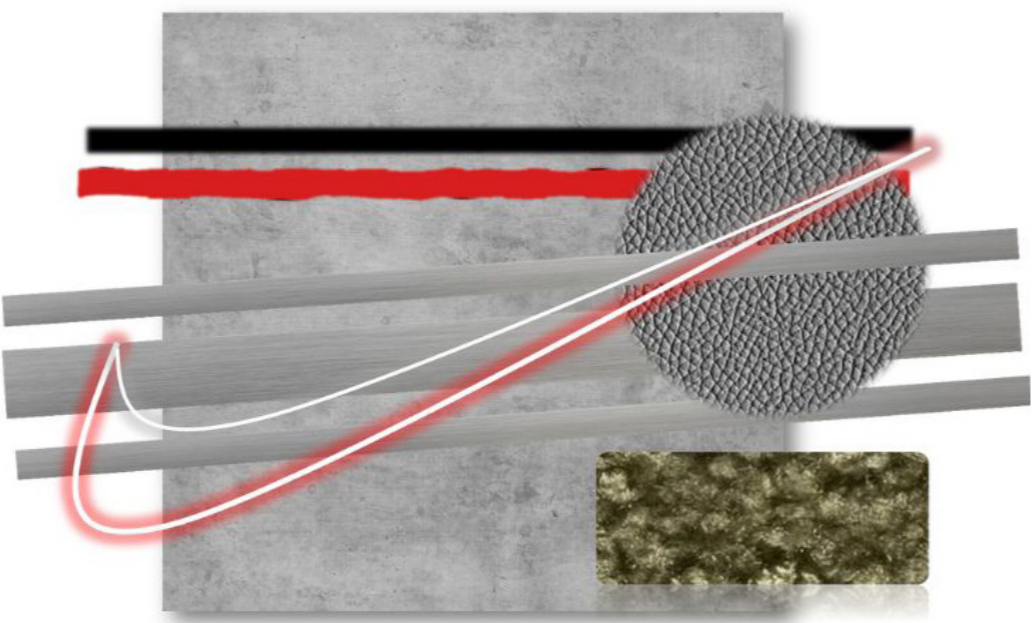

As a studio, we provided Kahn inspired concepts to our client: the Mies van der Rohe Society. Dr. Cynthia Vranas, the Director of the Mies van der Rohe Society, exhibited our concepts to fundraise for their project: Mies van der Rohe Society Gallery and Auditorium of the Michael Paul Galvin Tower at 10W. 35th St. in Chicago. The project illustrates a powerful sense of space through natural light and the materiality of mirrors, stainless steel and concrete.

Nike Outlet DFO Homebush

This project concept is inspired by Nike's vision of an "Everything is possible" space. The internal spaces offer a direct connection to futuristic space through the combination between minimal materials and technology.

The space conveys a connection between Nike by designing a Nike swoosh sign on the Footwear area using RedLED light and other Digital displays on the walls. The 'Just do it' LED stripe display on the soft surface wall presents a stylish space and connects to all appeal sections. The space brings the consumers to experience the futuristic space with Nike.

Mnemosyne Edgecliff

Mnemosyne Edgecliff is a unique sculptural form in four quadrants that curve and twist upon a central core. This project is to design a part of Mnemosyne Edgecliff Common Amenities.

This project designed three spaces which are the hotel foyer area, Restaurant & Cafe. When entering the entrance, the viewer is struck by the relaxed, calm, welcoming atmosphere through the use of material selection such as timber, tile and concrete. The LED lights are located on the ceiling, walls and floor which visually engages the space to be simple yet luxury. The design uses warm colours and elements which was inspired by the Australian native landscapes.
